THE MAN WHO AIMS

BY KALGOS

I sing of the man who aims,
The fellow who means to "get there."
I'll try to deal just with his claims,
And hear what he says of his sphere,
But I don't like the way that he frames
His aims that are lighter than air.

For the man who will tell you today
What he on the morrow will do,
May mean just to do it that way,
And think he is promising true,
But life, I must truthfully say,
Has slips and mistakes not a few.

I knew a young man long ago,
And above the average was he,
And he said just give him a show
And he'd carve a high destiny,
But his progress has been very slow;
He's a failure complete, don't you see.

I've found that a man who depends
On self is a failure sometimes,
And he who depends on his friends
So seldom to victory climbs
That I think that success springs and ends
In plodding along like these rhymes.

It's work and the pleasure in work
That carries one on to success,
And he who would haggle or shrink
Amounts to but little, I guess—
Don't promise, but toil like a Turk,
That's the pith and the point, I'll confess.

PITHY POINTS ALONG THE LINE OF PROGRESS

Some people think so much about the crown they are going to wear over yonder that they don't help anybody to wear a smile down here.

If you want to be popular, say but little about your own accomplishments but give the other fellow every opportunity to blow about his.

If you don't say all you think of saying you may come nearer saying all you ought to say, and not have the devil to pay.

The man who studies his own shortcomings and failures is the only one who can have true charity for other people.

No life can be a continual round of pleasure unless somebody pays the fiddler, and to lots of people paying for anything is not a pleasure.

UNITED STATES POLITICS

The following editorial, written by the editor of Progress and published a year ago last November in the Brooks Banner, is not inappropriate for re-publication, in the light of recent political events.

There is a lesson in the late political upheaval in the United States, and it will be well if the Republicans leaders pay heed to it. The Republican party came into power as an anti-slavery party. It stood for human rights and the liberation of three million blacks in the South where the cry of the oppressed had reached heaven. Its purposes were accomplished and a reconstructed south it made a record and entrenched itself in power. Gathering strength it came at last to another great issue, the tariff. It has to that issue in the forefront all these years. It has not always been straight and true in attempt to settle the question but has made a rag baby of it. Since the administration of President Taft began the party has blundered with this issue notoriously and many Republicans have turned away from their party in disgust because it so signally failed to keep its pledges. Taft himself has shown no disposition to keep these pledges but rather to ignore them. His main thought has been party unity above government or anything else and he evidently holds party fealty higher even than his duty as chief magistrate of the nation. So insistent has been for preserving party organization that even politicians have been disgusted and instead of preserving his party he has torn it asunder.

At the time when things were at the very worst in a party way, Theodore Roosevelt, after a year's retirement, came out of the jungle intelligently with the blood of his victory, without cause invitation or entreaty from party or people plunged at once into the fight like a hippopotamus into the muddy waters of the Ganges or Zambezi. His evidently thought he was the great boss and the only one who could unite factions and bring victory to the Republican party in the state elections. He went to Indiana to pull Beveridge through for the senate and Indiana went down to total defeat. He denounced the New York convention and named the candidate for governor and Johnson was defeated. He has found that the sea runs, sent no more guns with a long-suffering public and that he cannot rise the high tariff and the low tariff homes both at the same time and not is meant, even if he is a Rough Rider, Roosevelt has done some good things, for which we give him credit, and he has the courage of his convictions and is fearless but he is not a politician. Neither is he a statesman. No statesman would ever have made the mistake of forcing himself into a campaign where he was not wanted. The people have repudiated and discredited Roosevelt and his methods and the verdict has gone forth that in taking so active a part in the late campaign he has been a mischief maker and an interloper. As a presidential candidate for another term he is not a remote possibility, and Taft is in the same boat.

When a party goes into power or is continued in power, pledged to a certain issue and deliberately turns its back upon that measure as the Republican party has done under Taft there is but one way that the people can get relief and that way is to put the party out of power, and shake very much like that is just what the people of the United States are going to do. Too bad that Bryan, too is out of the running.

The writer has always been a Republican, never voted any other ticket, but the failure of the Republican to live up to its pledges has been a matter of deep disappointment and regret to him, as he feels sure it must be to thousands of others in the States.

The death knell of the Republican party in the United States was sounded last week in Chicago in the national Republican convention. William Howard Taft was nominated for president in a convention that was a disgrace to the country, and he will never be elected. Neither will Theodore Roosevelt who was nominated in an independent convention. The man of destiny is William Jennings Bryan, if he will consent to run on the Democratic ticket, and we think he will. The Republican party has served its day and a man who will use the methods that Taft used to secure his nomination is not worthy of any office in the gift of the people. He has but Tammany Tammany in its most odiferous days. He is a corrupt politician. The people of the United States will probably show what they think of him at the polls next November. The Republican party has had a long and successful career and stood for many of the best things in American government, but like all parties long in power it became corrupt. But Roosevelt will not succeed in organizing a new party that will live and become great and powerful like the Republican party. He is too erratic, too much of an agitator, and not at all a safe man to follow. Sane and conservative American people realize that fact. Many believe that Roosevelt is insane and he certainly has exhibited an insane ambition. The tilt between him and Taft has been disgusting.

ST. VITUS DANCE IN YOUNG CHILDREN

A Striking Example of its Cure By the Tonic Treatment

St. Vitus dance is the commonest nervous trouble in young children, because of the great demand made on the body for growth and development, and there is an added strain caused by study. It is a disease which impairs the blood, and the nerves fail to receive their full supply of nourishment, that the nervous quality which leads to St. Vitus dance begins.

The remarkable success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing St. Vitus dance should lead parents to give their children at the first signs of the approach of the disease. Pallor, listlessness, restlessness, nervousness and irritability are all symptoms which indicate that the child is suffering from St. Vitus dance.

JUDKINS OF PULLTIGHT

An Original Story

By Calvin Goss

While strolling along the city that evening Joshua, passed the big building where a great historical and industrial exhibition was being held. He didn't know what it was all about but he thought if there was any kind of a show going on he would like to see it. It might prove a pleasing contrast to the moving picture shows he had seen at Jonesville, the county seat of Buckhorn county, in which county Joshua had lived all his life. This was his first visit to a great city and he didn't know what city shows were like. He had heard Billy White, the banker's son in Jonesville, talk about shows he had seen in the city and Joshua thought that if this was anything like some that Billy had seen it would be well worth his time and money to go and see it. He stopped at the entrance, carefully read the banner that gave the price of admission, saw the crowds going in, and stepping up to the ticket window he paid his half dollar and went in with the rest.

What Joshua Judkins saw that night was a revelation and an education to the green country boy. He didn't really know there were so many kinds of machinery in the world. At first he was bored, and wondered when the real show would begin, but after a while he became interested and he spent a couple of hours taking it all in. "Gee" said he to himself, "if I could give this show up for the Bugle wouldn't it be great? But I could give them some pointers on machinery and things they never heard of before. And wouldn't I like to describe some of the people that I see here. Why, they'd call me a dithyrambic of a writer. That's one of my strong points, writing to people. Come mighty near getting licked for it once or twice, too."

Just then a stylish woman and her fashionable daughter, all bedecked with silks and jewels and moving in an inviolable cloud of breath of roses, passed where Joshua stood admiring a patent wheelbarrow and he heard the daughter say, "Dearie me, mamma, but isn't he the greenie!" Joshua heard the remark and was about to make a retort when he thought of his application for a place on the Bugle and decided then and there if he ever should write anything for the Bugle just such people as these rich would get a showing up that would teach them that some people are diamonds in the rough and by no means as green as they look. And the girl was so nice looking too.

At ten the next morning Joshua was in the editor's room and, with hat in hand, sat and waited until the editor should be at leisure. There was an unusually heavy grist of copy that morning and for half an hour Butler had but two senses, feeling and seeing, as he picked up page after page of copy, glanced over each and ran a blue pencil through a word here and a sentence or a paragraph further on. The young man looked on in wonder. He did not know what the blue pencil meant, nor in fact just why the editor was so absorbed in that stuff. Presently Butler turned in his chair and addressed his visitor.

"I'm going to try you, but I hardly know what sort of an assignment to give you. What did you do last night?"

"Went to a show. Guess it was pretty extravagant. Pap would say so for he thinks it's just throwing money away to go to shows. Thinks they are wicked, that is to say they are wicked, and he hates the price the exhibitors charge. I went in to show where all the machinery and things are. Talk about shows I'd like to write that one up. I could make a hull hoo out of it."

"Yes," said Butler, "the industrial exposition. So you took that? Well, well, write what you saw there."

let him go ahead and write up that exposition in his inimitable way as long as the show lasts, provided he can maintain the pace he has set for himself."

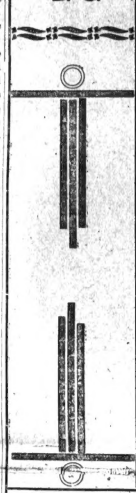

Joshua Judkins was the lion of the day. The boys intercepted him as he came to the managing editor's room a few hours later and gave him the glad hand. Men smiled at each other on the street and pointed him out as the new reporter on the Bugle. Women discussed the exposition wistfully at their tea parties and wondered who the writer could be. The name was new to them. There was little jealous rivalry among the reporters of the Bugle and none of them was jealous of Joshua. They were glad to see the country boy making so great a success with his first assignment.

For two weeks while the exposition lasted there was a descriptive column or more in the Bugle each day, giving a full account of the exposition, the exhibits and the people who visited them, as seen through the eyes of Joshua Judkins. People read and commented on the exquisite and spontaneous humor of these productions and they were copied extensively and carried over in other newspapers. All this was known to Joshua but his head was not turned by the praise that was given him. In fact he treated it all lightly and did not appear to appreciate the honor that was being bestowed upon him.

A day or two after the series of articles was concluded, Mr. Butler called Joshua into the sanctum and handed him a check for fifty dollars for the work done and at the same time told him that his name had been placed on the reporter's staff at a salary of twenty-five dollars a week. Judkins was under Tingley's supervision and it was seldom after this that he reported to the managing editor. In addition to the descriptive work he had been doing Joshua developed a talent for short rhymes and pungent paragraphs on local subjects and the news of the day and these were received with as much favor as the exhibition articles had elicited. In this sort of work he was sometimes called upon by Mr. Butler to furnish bits of verse for fit particular occasions.

Prize Winning B.C. Fruit Lands

OWN a five acre fruit and poultry tract, or more, in British Columbia and be independent for life. $20 down and $10 a month pays for it. No interest and payments extended in case of sickness. From $500 to $1000 per acre realized by ranchers in this famous prize-winning district; the Main Kootenay Lake. Ideal climate conditions, no rainy seasons as on the coast; no dry seasons or irrigation needed as in the Okanagan and Cranbrook districts. See Government reports. The main lake never freezes over and boats run the year around—see reports of other districts. Lament years is finding this ideal spot. I live there myself. I call my own fruit ranch—40 acres—"The Honeymoon Place." Send for my booklet entitled "Honeymooning." It tells you all you want to know about that great British Columbia country and there are scores of questions answered.

The new booklet, "Harris' New Method of Apple Culture," tells you how apples can be made to come into commercial bearing the second year. The old way you had to wait five years. Where a farmer made $15,000 he can now make $12,000 per acre. Is it fair if you will send me the names of ten of your friends or relatives who may be interested in buying fruit lands. I have sold to over 40 people the last four months and would be pleased to send you copies of some of the nice letters that they have written to me, which I received from those who have visited their holdings which I picked out for them.

I refund your money if after seeing the tract I select for you, you are not satisfied with it or with the rest I have to offer. If you cannot go onto your tract and wish to maintain your present position for a few years, and spend your vacation out there, I will agree to plant it and take care of it for you for five years at a small additional cost and give you a share of the profits from crops. I allow you a discount of ten per cent for cash, and give you a good commission in case you can secure buyers for me.

My monthly price list for wild and improved tracts will interest the most careful buyer. My next extension will be leaving Winnipeg June 27, and I will be pleased to have you join me. Send for my famous "Kootenay Magazine," issued monthly, illustrated and full of good things about that wonderful country. $2.50 per year, or 25c for sample copy. A year's subscription for 20 names and addresses, written policy, of people interested in B. C. fruit lands.

Write me at once, giving name of a reliable reference, your nationality, amount you wish to invest, and I will forward booklet, map, etc. Address me personally at head office:

For once the Dominion Immigration authorities are beset to a frazzle. Almost every order that comes their way they can fulfill but at last they have received one that the Department of the Interior, with its almost limitless resources, is totally unprepared to have satisfactorily carried out. Anyone please help the Department.

Does any rich widow in Winnipeg for Winnipeg girls in windows are preferred—and worth from three to four million dollars desire to embark once more on the sea of matrimony? If so here is a chance. In Alberta is a nobleman, rich, and above all has a homestead and is in a desperate hurry to marry.

Just give your name and address. That is all he will do for you. Any young Winnipeggers, who may have like desires do not seem to be considered to have a chance by the man in the west.

Brooks is the letter which came to Bruce Walker the other day:

Dear Sir—I have the honour to tell you by this, that I arrived at Monarch, Alta. on the 9th of March, and that I took up a half section of land, 320 acres at Carlstadt, on April 1st. I have to settle on that land on 1st of October next, before going on if I wish to get married.

As I am a nobleman and rich, I wish to marry a rich widow of 30 to 35 years of age with about three to four million dollars. Dear Sir, you will do me a great favor if you will give me the address of such a rich widow in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Send me the address as soon as possible of such a rich widow and I will let you know and marry next Monday, it being a legal day. I can let me rest at the same holiday. Progress would suggest time, how many millions she has, that every day she has.

The places of business in Carlstadt will probably all be closed think I can do the rest and marry next Monday, it being a legal day. I can let me rest at the same holiday. Progress would suggest time, how many millions she has, that every day she has.

There is something fascinating to the writer, who is accustomed to let his soul flow through his finger tips, in a clean blank sheet of paper. He looks at the unadorned whiteness of the page that lies before him and he feels that somewhere back in the labyrinth and convolutions of his brain there are thoughts like five and throbbing things waiting to be pictured there in visible signs. Sometimes the transferences of those thoughts and memories to paper is disappointing, for none of us ever can tell just as we think they ought to be told those things that are evolved in the brain's workshop. No writer ever wrote a story that in every word and line was satisfying to his ambition.

And not even Goldsmith or Charles Lamb or Hawthorne was ever satisfied with his mastery of language. The better one can write the less he is satisfied with the product of brain and pen. He knows that thought and language are elusive, but the joy and the reward lies in the attempt to do his very best and the pure whiteness is an inspiration to draw out and fix in written characters, the visible signs of speech, his very best thoughts.

The third tragedy of the month occurred at Brooks last Wednesday when a little boy, son of one of Mr. Sands, C.P.R. irrigation department engineers, was found dead in the pond a short distance from the department headquarters. The little fellow was in swimming and was drowned.

In conversation a day or two ago with a gentleman who travels among farmers all over the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the subject of Brooks was told that never before in these three provinces has there been better prospects for good crops. In all three of the provinces the crops are well advanced.

There was a horse race Saturday afternoon between two horses, one of which belonged to B. F. Hanson and the other to A. G. G. The race was an exciting one and the contest so close that the judges called it a tie.

Land values are increasing rapidly in Southern Alberta and will never be lower. Now is the best time to invest. Land in the vicinity of Carlstadt is a gilt edge investment. The town will grow and values will increase.

John Coffin who has been postmaster at Hocking has leased the building formerly occupied by H. R. Bean and will put in a stock of dry goods and groceries at once. Mr. Coffin has spent most of his life in the mercantile business.

The Duke of Sutherland recently doubled his holdings at Brooks and now has sixteen thousand acres of land which he divides up into small farms and sells to British colonies. New houses for colonists are being built now and many others will follow in the near future.

The extremely hot weather of the past week has caused a good deal of discomfort. The thermometer has registered as high as 88 in the shade and as the sun shines brightly for nearly seven hours every day it is no wonder that the weather is warm.

It may surprise some people to know that there are black-tailed deer in this part of the country. The editor of Progress has been informed by a government game warden that on Sand Creek north of the Red Deer river, there is a herd of six of these animals who make their home in among a clump of cottonwood trees.

Mr. Wm. Tucker in the Carlstadt school, who was taken seriously ill last week, was removed to the hospital at Medicine Hat Monday evening. The pupils will have a vacation until Mr. West is well or other arrangements are made.

We sometimes wonder if in the final summing up of the causes that have led to the rapid development of this last great west the newspapers will receive proper credit. They have certainly had very much to do in the great work.

Coyote pits are now worth six dollars apiece. Four years ago the bounty was taken off coyotes but it is to be restored again next year when one dollar a head will be paid by the government for killing them. At that it will take something more than an amateur to make wages killing them. They are a very wary animal and hard to shoot.

Towns are like individuals. In fact towns are made up of individuals, and when these individuals combine their energies and work together for advancement the town is bound to grow and prosper. But there are, few towns that live up to their opportunities. There is a tide in the affairs of towns which taken as the flood comes on to fortune. Let us given our opportunities and make all out of them we can.

Mr. Boyd, who owns a quarter section adjoining the new townsite that is being laid out at the junction of the Red Deer and Saskatchewan rivers where the new Swift Current line of the C.P.R. is to cross, informs us that there is great activity in that locality and that building operations in the new town will begin at once. Already thirty thousand feet of lumber have been rafted down the Red Deer to be used in building the new town. The contract for grading a mile of the railroad from the townsite west has already been let and it is believed the road will be completed next year. The new town has not yet been named but it has been predicted that in a very few years it will rival Medicine Hat.

Among the most common rumors in this country are rumors of new railroads and about half the homesteaders you talk to have a "new road" that will come just south of corner of my half section." Another latest rumor is one to the effect that Carlstadt will have a line connecting with the rich farming country north of the Red Deer river in the early future. This information is from a semi-official source and there is, probably, some truth in it.

The places of business in Carlstadt will probably all be closed next Monday, it being a legal holiday. It is great would suggest that every citizen observe the day.

At this season of the year there are a large number of prospective settlers traveling over the province of Alberta looking for the best place in which to make a home. To all such, we can recommend Carlstadt and vicinity, the soil here is as good as can be found anywhere in the province, and the seasons are better than in many other localities.
